America was founded by religious people who opposed an all-powerful “church state”. They were, for the most part, Christians. They wanted the freedom to worship as they saw fit, without penalty from the government. They found it here. When they declared their independence from Britain in 1776, they clearly established that they were a free nation, made up of free people, with rights granted to them by their Creator, not by man or government. America’s law is clearly based on Judeo-Christian principles and the Bible, with deep roots in both Anglo-Saxon Law and the Ancient Law of Israel. On this there is no dispute from a historical point of view.

Over time, progressive factions in America have systematically re-written history and created a completely distorted view of our religious roots. To get around the Constitution, Declaration of Independence and Bill of Rights, they had to literally create false history. They have done so in our textbooks, our media, our universities, and in our government. The result has been staggering.

We are free, in America, to worship, or not worship God, in any form, from any religious doctrine. The reason we have that freedom, is that our Founders established a limited form of government, based on sound moral principles, taken directly from their religious ethics. They never wanted a state religion, but they clearly wanted a moral government, made up of moral people.

So take the time to know your roots. They are deep and they are valuable for you to understand. They don’t require you to be a Christian, or even a believer, for that matter. They are simply, the truth.
